

CCIS SEMINAR SERIES PRESENTS:

The Other Side of Assimilation:
How Immigrants are Changing American Life

Monday, January 22, 2018 | 12:00PM - 1:30PM

ERC Conference Room 115

Tomás Jiménez

Associate Professor of Sociology
Stanford University

Discussant: Jennifer Lee

Professor of Sociology
Columbia University

---

The immigration patterns of the last three decades have profoundly changed nearly every aspect of life in the United States. What do those changes mean for the most established Americans—those whose families have been in the country for multiple generations?

The Other Side of Assimilation shows that assimilation is not a one-way street. Jiménez explains how established Americans undergo their own assimilation in response to profound immigration-driven ethnic, racial, political, economic, and cultural shifts. Drawing on interviews with a race and class spectrum of established Americans in three different Silicon Valley cities, The Other Side of Assimilation illuminates how established Americans make sense of their experiences in immigrant-rich environments, in work, school, public interactions, romantic life, and leisure activities. Jiménez reveals how immigration not only changes the American cityscape but also reshapes the United States by altering the outlooks and identities of its most established citizens.

---

For more information please call 858-822-4447 or email aminvielle@ucsd.edu