Emerging Immigration Scholars Workshop Session 4: How Migrants Incorporate

Friday, February 26, 2021 via Zoom from 12PM - 2PM (PST)

The Center for the Study of International Migration (UCLA) and the Center for Comparative Immigration Studies (UCSD) invite you to attend the “Emerging Immigration Scholars” workshops, scheduled every other Friday from 12-2 PM PST, starting on January 15 and continuing until March 12. The workshops seek to create an interdisciplinary space for junior immigration scholars to share drafts of their research and writing projects and elicit feedback from one another as well as the community of migration scholars throughout the UC system. The workshops are open to the public. Workshop sessions will feature brief presentations by authors followed by comments, segueing quickly to discussion.

Presenters:

Nazreen Bacchus, Assistant Professor, Department of Sociology and Anthropology, Farmingdale State College, State University of New York, "Seeking Islamic Justice: Muslim New Yorkers Reframing the Narrative of Islam Post 9/11"

Liliana Rodriguez, Assistant Professor, Department of Sociology, Texas A&M University-Kingsville, "Coping Responses: Adolescent Arrivals Navigating an Anti-Immigrant Climate"

Dialika Sall, Postdoctoral Fellow, Department of Sociology, Rice University, "Pride and Prejudice: Race, Ethnicity and the Children of African Immigrants"

Commentator:

Rubén Hernández-León, Professor, Department of Sociology, University of California, Los Angeles

Registration is required to receive access to the papers for each session. The link and password will be included on your registration confirmation from Zoom. Papers will be available via the shared box folder approximately 10 days before each session.
